

Child Protection Conferences

Information for parents and carers

What is a Child Protection Conference?

It is a meeting held because professionals have concerns that a child may be at risk of harm.

A Child Protection Conference is held after professionals have decided that it is necessary to have a meeting to share information, so that every one has a better understanding of what the problems are and what can be done to protect the child. The aim of the meeting is to work with parents and carers to help them safely care for their children.

Who will be at the Child Protection Conference?

Your child's Social Worker will be there, as well as other relevant people, including your child's Health Visitor and Teacher. A Police Officer may also be present.

You will be told who has been invited. It is very important that you come to the meeting so that you can share and hear information about your child and your family.

The conference could last up to three hours so please make sure that you don't have any other commitments on the morning or afternoon of the conference. You should contact your child's Social Worker if you need help with child care while the conference is taking place.

We always provide an interpreter, if you need one.

What can you expect at a conference?

Before the conference you should have seen a copy of the Social Worker's report. The conference will be chaired by an independent person. Their job is to make sure that everyone, including you, is given the opportunity to speak and ask questions. They will also ensure that the conference makes some clear decisions about what will happen next.

What happens next?

If the conference decides that a child protection plan is necessary to safeguard your child, a Core Group will be set up to develop the child protection plan and make sure that everyone does what they have said they will do. You will be part of the Core Group.

If the conference decides that a child protection plan is not necessary but that you and your child require support, your child's Social Worker will draw up an action plan called a Child in Need Plan.
